

The 'Call'

This is not an obituary. It's a note about a call. Saeanna 'The Editor and Writer' would have never written a sad story about her life!

Saeanna would like you to know that her work here is done. She received a call, a sort of an offer you can't refuse, for an appointment from which she will not be returning. And she was not early, neither was she late. Saeanna was always on time. And when this call from God came she left for it.

She passed away on December 24, 2016.

She will be remembered every time you walk into the Hairdressor- oh how she loved a good weave! You will remember her when u see lipstick. You will remember Saeanna in every intelligent conversation on politics, gender and women's rights, African problems, hunger, elections!!anything! And every time u see a smile. She had the widest smile. So beautiful so Pretty.

Friends and family who knew Sae, knew she loved life, she had so much passion and delight. She loved to travel. She was funny- every time I told her a younger cousin was getting married before us she would say 'if we don't get married let's go back to school cousin Fari and have many graduation parties since we can't have a wedding!! And she loved her family. She spent the last few days of her life with her family who were by her side. Her brother, her mother and her father were close to her heart! She leaves behind numerous loving relatives and friends.

Saeanna was born on 16 October 1980. She attended Tshinga Primary School and completed her O'levels at Loreto High in 1993. She then proceeded to St Theresa Hama High school where she did her A levels. Sae was a go getter! Her dreams were bigger than her fears. After High School she went to Midlands State University where she attend BA HONORS degree. She then worked at SA research and Documentation Center as programs officer. Whilst there she was awarded a scholarship from OSISA to study for a Masters in Media and Journalism at Rhodes University in Grahamstown. Sae then moved to Johannesburg to work for Gender Links as the Gender and Media Diversity Centre Manager. But she wanted more. She left her job at Gender Links and began a new job and career path with UN Women in South Africa.

She left UN Women to join World Vision International as Regional Communications Director for Southern Africa. Saeanna was a Christian she believed in God, a Humanitarian Worker, An Editor, A Writer, A lover of life, A sister. , a friend, a daughter, a cousin! ~

Saeanna has written many articles that will be read long after she is gone. ITS HARD TO FORGET SOMEONE WHO GAVE YOU SO MUCH TO REMEMBER!!!

ZORORA MURUGARE SAEANNA
Walk into paradise! No more
Pain no more tears!

It Is Finished
