Background

Members of the Alliance, NGOs and Women entrepreneurs needed one platform to come together and discuss the issues which is currently shaking the population of Mauritius. During the past few weeks, two episodes marked the country; one being the anti-LGBTIQ illegal gathering at Place D'Armes in Port Louis which did not allow for the Annual Pride March organised by the LGBT organisation in Mauritius and the other one being the case of the 13-year-old, religiously married girl who was pregnant and found dead in her bathroom. These two episodes surely shocked the Mauritian population. As the Summit aim was to bring together different NGOs and organisations for them to showcase their best practices, they could not resist talking about these two episodes during the opening of the Summit.

The second episode marked the attention of many people in Mauritius. The case of child marriage and the fact that Mauritius could not signed the SADC Gender Protocol due to clause on 'child marriage' came to surface.

Unique features of the 2018 Summit

- Greater visibility to NGOs, a key cross-cutting Alliance partner.
- The three representatives who presented in the Drivers of Change category did an amazing expose on the fight they have been leading for the past years. Hence, three winners were proclaimed in the Drivers of Change category

- The NGOs assisted in the emerging women entrepreneurs' presentations and many NGOs present were willing to give additional support to the women and shared useful information with them

Introduction

The Summit started with the opening remarks of Gender Links Mauritius Country Manager, Anushka Virahsawmy who highlighted on the fact that Mauritius is the only country who has not signed the SADC Gender Protocol due to the fact that the protocol calls for countries to eliminate child marriage. The reality in Mauritius is such that the law describes an adult who has attained the age of 18. Nonetheless, the Marriage Act prescribes that someone at the age of 16 can get married with 'parental consent', hence the issue of child marriage in Mauritius.

It has been noted that marriages are taking place at the age of 16 with 'parental consent' and that as per the Muslim Law, religious marriages as well can take place. Virahsawmy equally highlighted on the recent episode of a pregnant girl of 13 who was married by a Muslim priest and died recently. Virahsawmy elaborated in the 'Collectif' formed by NGOs and activists to lobby for ending child marriage in Mauritius. This 'Collectif' will have its first press conference on the 28th of June in Port Louis, Mauritius and actions will follow. This will compose of a mass lobbying and advocacy action which Gender Links Mauritius has started.

The vice chairperson of MACOSS then talked on the need to collaboration between NGOs and the importance of this SADC Gender Summit to only gather best practices of NGO work but also to collectively call for action and implementation of the law and policies as it should be.

After the opening remarks, the presentations followed.

CATEGORIES AND AWARDS

(1) DRIVERS OF CHANGE

Three presentations were made in the category Drivers of Change and they included:

1(a) Priscilla Bignoux – As Founder of Groupement Social de Souillac & Councillor

Bignoux presented her experience under the Drivers of Change category as the only female Councillor in the District Council of Savanne. She described her journey as a 'femme battante' – 'a woman who have been through a lot in her life and yeti s standing firm today'.

Bignoux explained how she had previously been a victim of violence. Today, after rigorous work with her partner, she has been able to come out of this. She explained her poor familial background and her journey in politics. She believes that it is important to work towards changing the mindset of people regarding gender stereotypes. Her project with young teenage mothers and the NGO 'Groupement Social de Souillac' which she created is a proof of her hard work.

She is continuously working in the south region, Souillac, to raise awareness among the survivors of GBV. She is also developing an extensive educational programme and training for the survivors of Gender Based violence.

1(b) Djemillah Mourade – Peerbux – As Founder of The Ripple Project

Djamila's journey began on the day when she went to buy hygienic products for around 10 women with Rs1000 and could buy products for only 2 women. She realised that basic hygienic products, such as sanitary pads and soap, are costly and are consequently not accessible to everyone. Appalled by this reality, she decided to set up the Ripple Project in December 2016. With the help of her friends and colleagues, she created a Facebook page. In the single month of January 2017, many people reached out to her and by the end of that month, she was able to distribute a wide range of hygienic products to underprivileged women. Djamila started this project because she believes that access to basic hygienic products is a human right. These products are not luxurious items but are necessities.

The Ripple Project is an initiative of a citizen. It is not a non-governmental organisation. Djamila did not want to waste her time and energy setting up a NGO and writing projects to receive funding from CSR. She wanted to directly work with and help these people. She relies only donations. Djamila does not have a big team behind her. Her daughter helps her in organising the products. Djamila aims to set an example and to show that an individual does not need money or certificates to bring change. Anyone who has the desire to help can bring a change in society.

1 (c) Jean Hugues Gardenne – Mauritian Wildlife Foundation

Jean Hugues works at Mauritian Wildlife Foundation. He has been working on projects of plant conservation and habitat restoration. For example, in l'Ile Ronde, his team worked to restore the habitats of endangered species and to decrease the number of predators preying on these species. Jean Hugues is apprehensive of the current situation of the ecosystem which is being destroyed due to urbanisation. Only 1.5 % of the Mauritian land serves as appropriate habitat for endemic species. He thinks that many Mauritians may not be conscious of the devastating impact that their actions may have on nature. Along with his team, he has been working on awareness campaigns which target children and youngsters as they are the future of tomorrow. Mauritian Wildlife Foundation has worked with children in Rodrigues to educate them on the ecosystem.
