Programme

The opening ceremony on the 12th March was headed by the Ministry of Public Health, Ms Johanita NDAHIMANANJARA, with the presence of other distinguished representatives from the State Institutions, the Prime Ministry, the Ministry of Population and Social Affairs, the UNFPA, the partners and stakeholders.

A total of 210 participants attended the event. The ceremony started with a cultural activity with all the participants wearing their traditional attire dancing and parading to assert their identity and the diversity of Malagasy cultures.

Traditional Dancing-Official Opening of Gender Justice and Local Government Summit

The GL country manager welcomed the audience and the GL Board member emphasized the importance of such event since it can be considered as an opportunity to get lessons from the "deep Madagascar "which is the depositary of the country patrimony".

The Head of the GL Francophone division briefly gave an outline of the nature of GL work with media houses as well as with local governments on specific themes related to gender mainstreaming, she further urged women to become agents of change.

All the partners recognized in their speeches that no development can take place without the participation of all women and men, this active participation cannot come true if women are not empowered financially and economically to take mature and efficient decisions.

The representative of the Association of Gender Aware Local Councils (A.E.S.G) voiced their wishes that their small association had a great vision to become a giant in their development activities.

The UNFPA representative reiterated that GBV should not be seen as sensational news item but rather as a human rights violation, as GBV is an obstacle to development and peace. Furthermore adding that the summit would be an opportunity to present a pool of good practices and approaches to address GBV not only for Madagascar but the SADC region as a whole.

The representative from the Ministry of Population and Social Affairs recognized the timeliness of the summit and said that "violence and insecurity are among the major concerns of that ministry. Other factors have to be taken into consideration too, such as drug taking, mind sets".

The Minister from the Ministry of Public Health in her inaugural address gave an overview of the national policies concerning health and gender. She recalled the signing of some international conventions and the renewal of the National Action Plan on Gender and Development. She also recognized that GBV is tolerated in Madagascar due to several factors, among which financial dependence, social status and just the grounds of being a woman. The victim may also have to file the complaint which can be a difficult initiative for her to carry out.

The Minister incited everyone working in gender field to lead informative and raising awareness campaigns on the fight against violence. The foundation for the struggle would be to ensure that victims are aware of their rights and of any potential recourse in case of violence occurrences.

The second part of the ceremony focused on Gender Based Violence Taking Stock and a debate led by the UNFPA representative.

The Ministry of Population and Social Affairs presented slides of national GBV data the following are main points which were discussed:

- The Legal framework: CEDEF/ PANAGED
- Significant indicators: 20% women only dare denounce GBV.
- Shortcomings in Legislation: see discriminatory provisions related to nationality, heritage, absence of GBV laws, and presence of GBV in the work place.
- Existence of discriminatory practices, namely in politics, in culture and tradition: the law of silence, or in land ownership.
- Obstacles: weak power of decision, low purchase power, low educational level.
- Steps forward: compliance of legislation with international conventions, advocacy, gender mainstreaming, capacity building by awareness arising campaigns, equipping women's associations and the setting up of the National Gender Platform.

The UNFPA panelist Dr Solomandresy Ratsarazaka drew the attention of the participants to the importance of reproductive health, stating that Malagasy girls tend to have sexual intercourse at a very early age, yet their bodies are not ready. Many Malagasy women die when giving birth it is thus essential to raise awareness on the danger of early pregnancy. This would fall within the duties of gender activists also noting that women should be incited to go to Basic Health Centers to have safe delivery.

The next panelist, an expert in GBV explained the links between Gender Based Violence and Reproductive Health everyone is aware that GBV victims lack energy, they do not have peace of mind, they have difficulties to take part in social life and need much psychological support. Victims of GBV sometimes leave their job and thus become burdens for the community.

The challenges that were addressed included that awareness raising and the sensitization of men about reproduction health, HIV AIDS and STDs and support.

The third speaker, a consultant based at the Adolescent Reproduction Health Unit noted that parents try to implement the ways they had been brought up by which may not always work.

Three points resulted from the debate:

- The ignorance of fundamental rights and their non respect
- Prevention is better than cure
- The importance of education by using media, community and schooling.

The GL officer explained the proceedings and modalities of the summit and further proceedings participants were divided into different groups and four rooms were allocated for presentations, a jury was appointed for each category and room.

All the participants to the summit were also asked to fill in the different forms in their information pack which included the GMDC Forms, Protocol Quiz, KAS, scorecard and documentation about climate change, including the overall evaluation form.

Outreach

The summit was covered by the media which included four newspaper articles which were written that praised the efforts made at basic community levels to end gender based violence. The newspaper articles underlined the fact that gender violence is still prevailing in some regions with customs and traditional practices as being the main obstacles to gender equity. See the attached Annex D which gives the detailed press release. The media coverage is summed up in Annex E and Annex F gives examples of media articles.

Outcomes

The three days of presentation were very enlightening for GL and for all the participants. The presentations of each participant reflected all the aspects of gender based violence in Madagascar, which differs from one region to another: “Each presentation was a source of enrichment and knowledge for me”, said one participant. Given the fact that the judges and some of the participants are all important actors (representatives of associations and NGO, teachers, religious groups, lecturers, mayors, etc.) for the fight against gender violence, they could already discuss on the solutions for the problems exposed during the presentations.

In addition, a huge number of violence cases were reported at the summit, which enables everyone to know the existence of some forms of violence in far away regions and to take appropriate measures for all future actions or interventions: "The presentations were useful as strengths and weaknesses had been enlightened and could thus be improved". A various range of topics were also presented by the participants, including GBV against men, sexual harassment, violence against children, etc. which enriched everyone's knowledge: "The discussion on reproductive health: it summed up all the problems women have to face" asserted a man. See Annex I for full evaluation summary.

The relevant feedback which was received from the judges was also analyzed see Annex K.

Lessons learned

The national summit was an opportunity to recognize and give tribute to ordinary people including those at grassroots level and local governments and recognize the work that they do with regard to the struggle for gender equality. The massive participation from the various regions demonstrated that there was willingness and commitment to ensure that change would take place.

The various case studies which were presented through the various presentations illustrated the number of different strategies and innovation which was being employed to address GBV. Sharing experience and interchange can be very valuable for development and gender mainstreaming within the local councils.

The gender dimension should be taken into consideration in the forming of the jury panel, the summit should be done in each province to launch every region should also have gender training and the continued fight against GBV should be carried out all over the national territory, especially in rural areas. See Annex G for full SWOT analysis.

Next steps

Gender Links Madagascar is now working with thirty-one councils which are part of the Centres of Excellence Initiative these councils be they rural or urban are trying to mainstream gender in their development programmes and especially to budget their planned activities. The COE councils have completed stages 1-10 of the programme ,the buy-in of the community as well as that of the council is vital to the success of their enterprise.

Some GL Madagascar partners have expressed their willingness to support more new councils in the COE initiative programmes. The list of Councils in the country highlighting existing and future CEOs can be found in Annex H.

The setting up of the national GBV platform for the region of Indian Ocean really shows the synergy for gender mainstreaming within the country. It will serve as a coordinating unit for all efforts and actions undertaken to end Gender Based Violence.

Other comments?

- Such summit should be organized annually.
- The category to be exposed via power point should be defined clearly and not changed at mid process.
- The vote should be carried out in transparency.

- The participants who have already been abroad should not be taken for the next departure.
- The technical aspect is not yet OK, thus some candidates had some hesitations.
- I think that the next summit will see the massive participation of all the local councils in Madagascar.
- Reimbursement of accommodation and travel expenses: insecurity at UNFPA.
- Members of Jury: to include representatives of MATD and Gender
- A category for trainers should be included.
- Those who have already been to Johannesburg should no longer take part to motivate the others, especially for the COE.
- The gender dimension should be taken into consideration in the forming of the jury panel.
- All the presentations should be made in Malagasy because the participants from the countryside have difficulty.
- Certificates should be handed to the participants.
- The summit should be done in each province to launch every region.
- The catering service was good.
- The exchange was interesting: it allowed me to know things happening in other regions.
- The summit should be continued and there should be classification of the different types of participants. The participants from rural local councils should be separated from those from the cities, the same with the associations.
- The summary of the previous summits in Johannesburg would be very helpful.
- Lack of communications and useful documents.
- To sensitize both rural and urban councils alike.
- The national summit should go on. Thank you so much.
- Cheer up and continue your efforts.
- It would be better that new participants go to Johannesburg summit.

- Gender training and the fight against GBV should be carried out all over the national territory, especially in rural areas.
- To conduct training to local councils which would like to take part in the summit beforehand in order to inform them about the supportive documents needed for the presentation.
- It is the first time I take part in such event and I feel that training is required especially for regions on the coast.
- Facilitation is always required so that all the actors could appropriate the program at any national or regional level.
- The debate on reproductive health and gender based violence should be organized and held as regional conference taking into account the actual participation of Civil Society, Women's associations, Men's associations, Youth's associations, traditional and religious leaders.

ANNEX J: THE MINISTER OF PUBLIC HEALTH' S ADDRESS

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,

GOOD MORNING

The contribution of the Ministry of Public Health to the fight against Gender Based Violence is not negligible. Indeed, the health professional workers are the first people to take in charge the women victims of marital or domestic violence.

In most cases, those occurrences of violence are rarely admitted. The woman comes to consult alone or accompanied by her husband, pretending an accidental fall. The doctor has the duty to provide care and, if the victim solicits it, to deliver a medical certificate.

It is thus important to stress that the doctor or the professional health worker does not have any right to interfere in his/her patients' private life, but however, in the case where somebody's life is in danger or that abuse is confirmed, he/she has the duty to advise the administrative and/or legal competent authorities.

Gender based violence is very common in the Malagasy community. I will not be going so far as declaring that it is a culture but a saying illustrates it well: "dirty clothes are washed within the family" and for a reason or another, gender based violence is "tolerated». I say "tolerated" between quotation marks because either due to financial dependence on her husband, or from her hierarchical status within the family or just from the simple fact of being a female, the woman will not be able to assert her rights: the right to equality, the right to dignity, and even the elementary right to dispose of her own body.

It is the duty of the victim to file a complaint, something rarely carried out. Resignation is the general rule. We are just making an assessment. A bitter assessment indeed, but which should incite all officials, all those that can act to show up, to mobilize themselves and organize a campaign, to raise awareness about gender based violence.

Yes, our struggle is there, in informing all the victims on their rights, the possibility to call green number, the information about any possible recourse. But we will always come up against this conception so firmly rooted in our culture, the consideration of feminine gender as inferior.

Ladies and gentlemen, the time is no longer for evasiveness but for concrete action. Let us not leave those machinations perpetuate and harm our future generations. Let us no longer suffer what our parents had endured. Let us unite! Lets us work together! The feminine gender has some rights. Let us make them respected!

Thank you for your kind attention.

ANNEX K: THE JURY'S FEED BACK

Arrangements:

In some venues the jury members, had been the same for the two days and a half session, but in others there were a change. In general, in the morning, just after the plenary session, the candidates had been distributed to each venue. The Chairs then explained the proceedings and the modalities of the presentation. Each presenter will have 10 minutes to make a Power Point presentation. Then the jury and the audience could ask questions for clarifications. The audience then passed to the voting. For the COEs, the jury gave marks.

The presentations actually began in the afternoon.

Remarks:

On the first day, on Monday 12, though there were some power cuts at the International Conference Centre the candidates continued their presentations, using their personal note cards and most of the candidates could finish their presentations within the time allotted.

- The candidates showed their determination and devotion to the project they defended.
- Some candidates had some difficulties to use Power Point and to make the presentation without looking at the slides, whereas others perfectly mastered this technique.
- It has been pointed out that every entrant would be treated equally and given same chance.
- Some presenters handed some supporting documents as evidence of their activities to the audience and the jury. For some reasons or others, those documents had not been integrated in their slides.
- In one venue the questions had been grouped. Each presenter answered by grouping the answers to all the questions put to everyone.
- For the Leadership Senior Category the session started only at 11h20. The Chair made some adjustments due to the delay.
- The candidates were told to feel free to use any language they are most at ease with to make their presentation and to try not to read the slides.
- There were some anomalies on the marking sheets of the jury: total of the marks.
- Four criteria which totaled 40 had not been clearly defined by the organizers. Each judge defined their own criteria for the four concerned. On the judge's marking sheet: the headings Total and Comments had been given 10 points each. The decision of the jury was to take off the 20 points, thus the mark would be out of 80.
- Some candidates concluded their exposé with a short story to illustrate their realizations and demonstrate their leadership. This criterion had not been defined on the judges' marking sheet.
- One candidate asked why there had been no voting after the first span of presentation: the Chair answered that all the presentations that morning belonged to the same category: Economic Development.

Positive Feedback

Some positive aspects need to be enlightened, namely:

- The respect of the timing
- The commitment (even devotion) and concern of participants for the fight against Gender Based Violence. The participants did not limit themselves to the questions but proposed some improvements to the good practices presented. Thus, the proposition to support the perpetrator of violence as well in all the actions, and not only the victim.
- Sharing of experience between the participants at the end of every session.
- The last day led to exchanges of contacts details and addresses, to the sharing of cordial moments, demonstration of hidden talents (poems, songs against violence...)
- The majority of the participants were women ; they showed strong will to act for change)

Areas of Improvement: The following points were areas pointed out for improvement:

- General organization: lack of chairs for the jury on the first day
- Marking Cards: for leadership category, a part of the criteria not mentioned (50 pts) decision of the jury: to add 30 supplementary points
- .Manipulation of Power Point: most of the participants did not master this software, manipulation by a third, thus the problem of synchronization between the slide and the oral presentation.
- Change of category: The participants registered in the Institution category and moved to the Prevention category. (Case of Felambony Prisca and Ralahajanahary Leonardo): So Felambony Prisca tried to adapt her presentation to the template of the prevention category, Ralahajanahary kept the template of the Institution category. It made the marking of the judges relatively difficult.
- Process of the questions-answers: The time seemed insufficient; the interventions were not always balanced, too long speech for some participants.
